

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

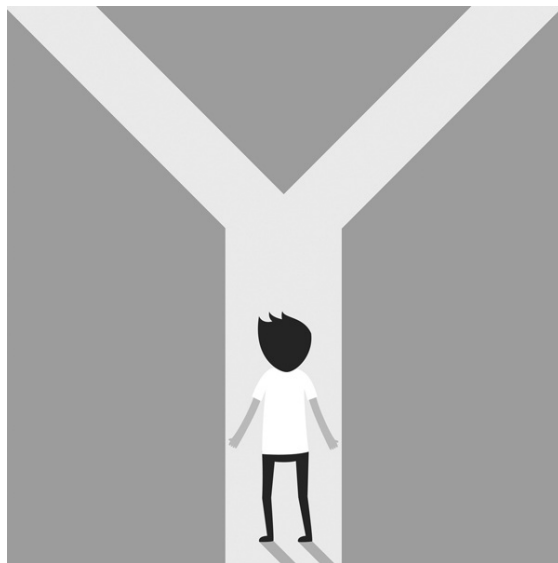

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Returning the favor.

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about people's backgrounds in a wider variety of communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- Are you good at making decisions or are you usually indecisive?
- Have you ever made a decision and then regretted it? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about rules, regulations and decision-making.
- I can express possibility and necessity.
- I can explain my opinion and organize points in argument.

Let's Explore!

Sally gets a chance to return the favor.

* "Return the favor" means to do a good deed for someone who has done a good deed for you.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: What a great idea to have our nails done together! We can chat and get manicures at the same time.
- Vanessa: Yes, I needed to talk to you and I thought I had better meet with you in person.
- Sally: What do you need to talk about? All the gossip had better be shared!
- Vanessa: This isn't gossip! You've spurred me to make a transition in my life too. My life may be transformed by my plan!
- Sally: That sounds intriguing! Tell me all about it. This is my chance to return the favor.
- Vanessa: I'm going to change the style of the restaurant. I think it might be more lucrative if it catered to children.
- Sally: What? Your rationale for doing this has to be explained!
- Vanessa: First, more people are taking their kids out to restaurants.
- Sally: Yes, but why does your restaurant have to be converted?
- Vanessa: There aren't many restaurants that make families feel welcome. In fact, a lot of restaurants don't allow children. In other words, families are discriminated against.
- Sally: Of course there is a reason that some people don't like children in a restaurant. For example, sometimes they are really loud and misbehave.
- Vanessa: You are right. However, people who have children understand about kids and they wouldn't object. Also, kids go to bed early so I could close the restaurant earlier.
- Sally: On the other hand, you'll lose all the customers who don't have kids. Think of the consequences!

Let's Practice!

Vanessa explains what she thinks about children's restaurants.

Instructions: Read the text and underline all the discourse markers.

There aren't many restaurants that make families feel welcome. In fact, a lot of restaurants don't allow children. In other words, families are discriminated against. And I know kids can misbehave sometimes; however, people who have children understand about kids and they wouldn't object. Also, kids go to bed early so I could close the restaurant earlier.

Let's Practice!

Sally and Vanessa talk about Vanessa's new idea.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Write the letter of the corresponding heading (a, b, c, or d) on the space provided at the end of each sentence.

Options

- a. necessity in passive voice
- b. possibility in passive voice
- c. necessity in active voice
- d. possibility in active voice

1. Your rationale for changing the style of your restaurant has to be explained! ____
2. So, your restaurant could be converted to serve the children? ____
3. You must tell me the reasons you have for changing the style of your restaurant. ____
4. My life may be transformed by my plan. ____
5. Don't you think I should change the style of my restaurant? ____

Extension Activity

Debate the pros and cons of changing your career.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Make a list of all the pros (advantages) of changing your career or job to something completely different later in life.
- Your partner will make a list of the cons (disadvantages) of changing careers.
- Using your list, have a debate with your partner about whether it is a good or bad idea to change your career later in life.
- Be sure to use language to organize the points in your argument and to encourage agreement.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about rules, regulations and decision-making.

☐ ☐

I explain my opinion and organize points in an argument.

☐ ☐

I express possibility and necessity.

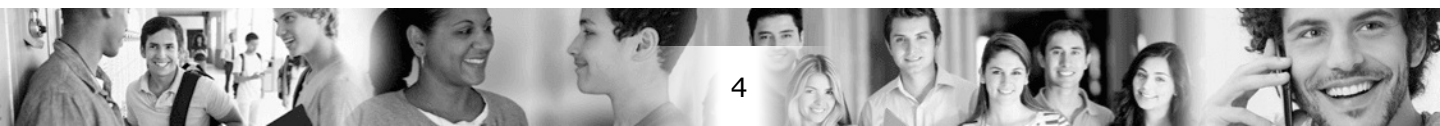

☐ ☐

I debate pros and cons.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- manicure (noun): cosmetic treatment of the fingernails
e.g. What a great idea to have our nails done together! We can chat and get manicures at the same time.
- in person (expression): to see or meet someone in physical presence e.g. I needed to talk to you and I thought I had better meet with you in person.
- to spur (verb): to stimulate or initiate e.g. You've spurred me to make a transition in my life too.
- lucrative (adjective): something that is profitable or moneymaking
e.g. I'm going to change the style of the restaurant. I think it might be more lucrative if it catered to children.
- to cater to (verb): to provide or supply food or services to a party or restaurant e.g. I think I will change the style of the restaurant to cater to children.
- rationale (noun): the reasons and arguments for doing something e.g. Your rationale for changing the style of the restaurant has to be explained!
- to convert (verb): to change or transform something e.g. Why do you want to convert your restaurant?
- to misbehave (verb): to have a bad behavior
e.g. There is a reason that some people don't like children in a restaurant. For example, sometimes they are really loud and misbehave.
- to discriminate against (verb): to treat unfairly a certain group of people e.g. A lot of restaurants don't allow children. In other words, families are discriminated against.
- consequence (noun): the result of something that took place earlier
e.g. You'll lose all the customers who don't have kids. Think of the consequences!

Learning Points

Modals for Possibility and Necessity

You use modal verbs to add meaning to other verbs. They come before the dictionary form (Infinitive without 'to') of the main verb.

Modal verbs can add meaning connected with certainty or necessity.

You can use modals with a variety of verb tenses. You can use them to talk about possible or necessary actions in the present, past or future.

You can use modals with the Simple Present tense:

I think the restaurant might be more lucrative if it catered to children.

(Here, the modal might adds the meaning of possibility: It is possible that the restaurant will make more money if it catered to children.)

Modals can also be used in the Passive voice:

The restaurant may be renovated soon.

Examples:

- I had better meet with you in person.
- All the gossip had better be shared!
- My life may be transformed by my plan!
- Why does your restaurant have to be converted?

Learning Points

Organizing Points in an Argument

You use words or phrases to organize ideas in a piece of writing.

Discourse markers show how ideas are connected. They usually come at the beginning of a sentence.

Discourse markers can show a connection to what the writer is saying and what was just written. They can also show what the writer's opinion is about what is being discussed.

Look at the chart for some common discourse markers and their meanings:

Discourse Marker	Meaning
However; But	Contrast
Therefore	Logical consequence
In spite of	Emphasizing a contrast
What is more	Adding
Of course	Stating it is obvious
In fact	Emphasizing and adding

Examples:

- First, more people are taking their kids out to restaurants.
- In fact, a lot of restaurants don't allow children.
- In other words, families are discriminated against.
- However, people who have children understand about kids and they wouldn't object.

