

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: Thinking about things from both sides.

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about people's backgrounds in a wider variety of communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What is the hardest decision you ever had to make? How did you make your decision?
- Do you have a strategy or method for making important decisions? What is it?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about decision-making.
- I can pronounce words with same consonant sound.
- I can say and use words like different and interesting.

Let's Explore!

Sally considers her options.

* When you "consider" something, you think about it carefully from both sides.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Okay, so I was playing the devil's advocate today, but you really need to reflect on the pros and cons of going back to school at this point in your life.
- Sally: I know. I'm just generally not that comfortable listing reasons.
- Vanessa: That's why we're going to do it together. It will be interesting! You need to think about your preferences.
- Sally: It will definitely help me make up my mind.
- Vanessa: Okay, so how about talking first about the positive aspects of you going back to school?
- Sally: It will be fun and interesting to learn new things. I'll make new friends. I'll improve myself. I might be able to kick off a new career related to my studies.
- Vanessa: Great! You have lots of different reasons that you should go to school. Now, what are some reasons that going back to school is not a good idea?
- Sally: It will be very expensive. I'm not really sure what I want to study so I might squander resources like time and money studying something that I end up not wanting to build a career in.
- Vanessa: Okay. Those are some pretty strong cons. You need to carefully consider these points before you make your decision.
- Sally: All this thinking is making me ravenous! Let's go to a restaurant!
- Vanessa: Good idea! All I've eaten today is chocolate.

Let's Practice!

Should that syllable be pronounced?

Instructions: Read the words and classify them by writing them in the correct category.

Syllables that are not pronounced	Syllables that are pronounced

- chocolate
- different
- vegetable
- diamond
- Canada
- Colombia
- computer

Let's Practice!

Where are the continuous consonant sounds?

Instructions: Circle the correct answer.

- The following sentence has an n-n continuous consonant sound:
 - Okay, so I was playing the devil's advocate today.
 - I'm just generally not that comfortable listing reasons.
 - It will be fun and interesting to learn new things.
- The following sentence has a d-d continuous consonant sound:
 - So how about talking first about the positive aspects of you going back to school?
 - Okay, so I was playing the devil's advocate today.
 - I'm just generally not that comfortable listing reasons.
- The following sentence has a t-t continuous consonant sound:
 - You are right! I should probably reflect on that.
 - I'm just generally not that comfortable when listing reasons.
 - It will be fun and interesting to learn new things.
- The following sentence has an r-r continuous consonant sound:
 - I'm just generally not that comfortable listing reasons.
 - You are right! I should probably reflect on that.
 - It will be fun and interesting to learn new things.
- The following sentence has a t-t continuous consonant sound:
 - Okay, so I was playing the devil's advocate today.
 - You are right! I should probably reflect on that.
 - So how about talking first about the positive aspects of you going back to school?

Extension Activity

Make a list of words with silent syllables.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- With a partner, brainstorm and make a list of words that have a silent syllable.
- Practice saying the words.
- Write an example sentence with each word on your list.
- With a partner, practice reading your sentences aloud. Record yourselves saying the sentences.
- Listen to each other and correct each other's pronunciation.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about decision-making.

☐ ☐

I brainstorm and write down words with a silent syllable.

☐ ☐

I say words like interesting and different.

☐ ☐

I record my pronunciation and correct my partner's pronunciation.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to make up your mind (expression): to make a decision about a certain topic e.g. Discussing my dilemma together will definitely help me make up my mind.
- to improve (verb): to make better or increase the quality of something or someone e.g. I'll improve myself if I go to school.
- to reflect on (verb): think carefully about something e.g. You really need to reflect on the pros and cons of going back to school at this point in your life.
- ravenous (adjective): to feel extremely hungry
e.g. All this thinking is making me ravenous! Let's go to a restaurant!
- to squander (verb): to spend or use a resource in a wasteful way e.g. I'm not really sure what I want to study so I might squander resources.
- to kick off (verb): to begin or start something e.g. I might be able to kick off a new career related to my studies.

Learning Points

Linking Words with the Same Consonant Sound

Linking is making a smooth connection between one word and the next when speaking.

You link the same consonant sounds to join words together and make speaking smooth.

When you link one consonant to the same consonant, the linked consonant sound becomes lengthened. It is pronounced for a slightly longer amount of time than a single consonant sound.

For example:

/r/ is a continuous consonant. When /r/ is linked to another /r/, you pronounce for a longer time than you do when you link the /r/ to another consonant sound.

Your_red dress sounds like Yourrrred dress

They are_right here sounds like They arrrrright here

Below are some examples of linking words with same or similar consonant sounds.

Practice saying the linked words below:

Consonant link:	Example:	Sounds like:
p-p	step parent	steparent
d-d	red dish	redish
k-k	speak Korean	speakorean s-s	less salt	lesalt f-f	half filled	hafilled

Examples:

- Okay, so I was playing the devil's advocate today.
- I'm just generally not that comfortable listing reasons.
- So how about talking first about the positive aspects of you going back to school?
- It will be fun and interesting to learn new things.

Learning Points

Silent Syllables in Which Unstressed Vowels are not Pronounced

Syllables are the sound groupings in words.

For example:

Ca - na - da

Com - pu - ter

Usually, you pronounce each syllable in a word.

Some words in English have syllables which are not pronounced.

Some examples are:

vegetable -----> vegtable

chocolate -----> choclate diamond -----> dimond interesting ----> intresting different -----> diffrent restaurant -----> restraunt

Practice saying the words above. Clap each time you say a syllable.

Examples:

- I'm just generally not that comfortable listing reasons.
- It will be interesting!
- You need to think about your preferences.
- Let's go to a restaurant!
- All I've eaten today is chocolate.

